"I always knew that I wanted my hair styled in a low, to-the-side romantic bun with a flower headpiece to complement my overall look. My stylist individually curled pieces of hair and then pinned them up to create just the look I'd envisioned!" Photo by Kate Connolly (kateconnollyphotography.com). "I wanted a half-up/half-down style that felt like 'me', so my stylist curled my long hair, swept it off to one side and pinned it in back. I liked the somewhat retro feel of the waves and I thought that it matched the sweetheart neckline of my dress really well." Photo by Jason + Anna Photography (weareyourphotogs.com). "I have pretty long hair to begin with, but my stylist added 20-inch extensions for the look I wanted to achieve. My hair was curled and a flower pin placed in back held it to the side. I had a beach wedding, so the final outcome fit the scene." Photo by Jeri Houseworth (jerihouseworthphotography.com). Hair by Mandy Liento (lasorellabridal.com). "I love vintage hair and makeup. I'm in a 1940s comedy group and I wore my mom's wedding gown. At first, I thought we'd do a finger wave, but it looked more 'costume-y' than bridal so we tried a more classic, elegant look. The headband and fascinator really completed it."

"I always pictured myself getting married in a princess ball gown with a half updo and cascading curls. Instead I found my dream dress with a back too beautiful to cover up. I found a style similar to this online and my stylist recreated it for me!" Photo by Andrew Johnson (photosbyajohnson.com). Hair by Robin Whitfield, Robin's Hair & Tanning. "My hair is too fine and straight to leave down and I love how clean and simple buns look, so my stylist clipped in human-hair extensions to add fullness and off-set the bun by putting it just under my ear. I added two silk and rhinestone flowers that perfectly matched my dress." *Photo by Alicia Fierro, Aesthetiica (aesthetiica.com). Hair by Mandy Liento (lasorellabridal.com). "As a fan of Hollywood's glamour days of the 1920's and 1940's, I wanted something soft, stylish and beautiful. My stylist created exactly what I asked for with the 'S' waves in back and big finger curls on the side and in front." *Photo by ES Photo (esphoto.com). "I wanted my wedding day hair to complement my dress and my mantilla veil. I also wanted a natural style that was wedding-appropriate, but I still wanted to feel like 'me.' As a bridal hairstylist myself, I took a little bit of everything I liked that I created on other brides and applied it to myself!"

"I've always wanted to wear my hair in an updo for my wedding. I came into my trial with a picture and an idea and my stylist created exactly what I wanted on her first try. On the day of the wedding, we added the hair comb to complement the look I was going for with my dress and it was perfect!"

"I love the look of my hair down, but wanted it off my face for my wedding. I opted for a half-up style and had the crown teased for a slightly vintage feel. Since a lot of my hair was pinned up, my stylist added clip-in natural hair extensions for volume and length. The style was finished off with crystal and pearl pins. I loved it!" Photo by Spark Photography (sparkphotography.com). Hair by Mandy Liento (lasorellabridal.com). Makeup by Jeanine Mangan (jmmakeupdesigns.com).

"They say you shouldn't do anything drastic on your wedding day—you should keep it as close to natural as possible. So, I never imagined myself with my hair up. I wanted to make sure that when my husband saw me, I would look like the same woman he fell in love with and asked to marry."

"Between finding my perfect dress and being in the beauty industry, picking out my hair style and makeup was a no-brainer. My goal was to have a soft, vintage, 1940s springtime feel. My hair is naturally curly and coarse so I wanted to play off of that—and having it off my neck and face was a must!" *Photo by Alicia Savoly (photoshop.com/users/AliciaNicolePhotography). "Originally I was planning on having a side-swept low updo with curls but after my stylist helped me with a trial run, we decided my hair was not thick enough, so I decided on a half-up style but I kept the curls and side-sweep and added some height. It came out perfect!"

"I have naturally curly hair and I wanted to keep my own curls for my special day. I wanted something soft and romantic but not 'fixed', so I loved how my stylist pulled back my own curls and perfected them with a few tendrils cascading down. A beautiful flower was placed in just so. It was a perfect accent to my beach ceremony."

“I knew that I wanted an updo so my hair would be out of the way. I went with a beautiful bun with a loose side part that from the front mimicked how I usually wear my hair. I couldn’t have been happier—my style was simple, classic, elegant and relaxed.”
